And the award winners are...

FOURTEEN young people are beginning this week as Burton Mail Children of Courage, following a moving and inspirational ceremony at the weekend.

The Pirelli Stadium was packed with well-wishers on Saturday evening, as each child went up on stage to collect their award for outstanding courage, contribution to the community, caring, fund-raising, or achievement in sports and performing arts.

The heart-warming tales of the winners were enough to move many audience members to tears, as they heard of great hardship and adversity, alongside uplifting stories of youngsters who give their time to help others.

Burton Mail editor Kevin Booth said: "These awards bring out and shine a light on some of the many fantastic things our youngsters do day in, day out."

PRIME Minister David Cameron today labelled the Mail's Take Five Minutes campaign 'excellent' – and has implored readers to back it.

In an unprecedented move, the country's leader praised the efforts of the paper and cancer survivor Katherine Sinfield as part of continued efforts to boost the number of people registered to help save lives through the donation of blood and organs.

The PM described the campaign as 'vital' and urged people across Burton and South Derbyshire to 'come forward'.

He said: "I'm delighted to back this excellent campaign by Katherine and the Burton Mail and I know that town MP
